

COFFINS, COFFINS EVERYWHERE AND NOT 1 NEEDED YET!

But There'll Be Plenty Handy
Should Casket Drivers' Strike
Have Fatal Results.

There is one thing to be said about the strike of the drivers for the National Casket Company in Hoboken. The strike-breakers who took the places of the striking drivers today will have their coffins handy, in case any of them should stop, with fatal results, the bricks and other missiles which, it is charged, the dissatisfied drivers are ready to heave.

The National Casket Company drivers struck a week ago today. They demanded $14 a week for a ten-hour day, double pay for overtime and the reinstatement of one of their number who had been discharged.

Twenty-four hours after the strike was declared, the drivers claim, Zachariah H. Reed, manager of the Hoboken factory of the National Casket Company, verbally accepted their demands and promised to sign a contract, last night. Instead of signing a contract, the drivers declare, he got busy hiring strike breakers and when the time came to consummate the agreement, backed out.

The strike breakers started in this morning. Every load of coffins that left the factory was protected by an armed private detective and a squad of police. The only violence reported was from Jersey City, where a truck of the National Casket Company was stopped. The strike breaking driver escaped injury.

MEYER'S NOT THE SPENDER HE WAS MADE OUT TO BE.

Young Hopeful of Sampson Household Lost His $7 and Got Neither Caramels Nor Liked.

It has been learned upon excellent authority that Meyer Sampson, the young hopeful of the Sampson household at No. 378 East Second street, Parkville, did not join Willie Cranigan, an eight-year-old Parkvillean, upon Willie's caramel spree Monday night. It is true that Meyer remained out late after having set off to the store with a check for $7, which he lost, but Meyer did not meet Willie and failed utterly to join Willie in the weird course of his sylvan life.

Meyer is not that sort of a boy. When his mother gave him the check with instructions to take it to the store and cash it Meyer started for the store. Half way he stopped to play marbles and while playing marbles he dropped the check out of his pocket. This sort of act Meyer came home, confessed his crime, was chided, then forgiven and sent to bed. A little while after a man who had found the check Meyer lost brought it to Meyer's home. So in the end Meyer was completely squared.

As for Willie he is still standing up to his meals, but hopes to be able to sit down to tomorrow's dinner.
